End Poverty for 1.3 million Californians on SSI

$100 a month to reach 100% of the Federal Poverty Level

The Magnitude of Cuts to SSI/SSP. Since 2009 the state-funded SSP portion of grants to individuals has been cut from $233 a month to the federal minimum of $156 a month, and for couples from $568 to $396. For decades California periodically provided an SSI/SSP COLA until it was repealed in 2009. The 2016-17 budget included a one-time COLA, the only restoration since 2009. Currently, 1.3 million Californians rely on SSI/SSP for their basic needs. SSI/SSP recipients increasingly rely on expensive public safety, medical and nursing home services that would not be needed if grants covered basic needs.

The High Cost of Low SSI/SSP Grants. In January 2009 the SSI/SSP grant of $907 per month was worth 100.5 percent of the federal poverty level (FPL) for a single individual. The maximum grant as of January 1, 2018 is $910.72 per month, worth just 90 percent of the FPL, which is now $1,011.67. Grant cuts and the COLA repeal have pushed recipients into homelessness and hunger, and are a significant factor in why we have the highest Supplemental Poverty Measure of any state. California is the only state where SSI/SSP recipients cannot receive food stamps.

AB 3200 (Kalra) would require a maximum aid payment provided to an individual or a married couple that does not equal or exceed 100 percent of the 2018 federal poverty level to be increased to an amount that equals 100 percent of the federal poverty level. This would roughly equal a $100/month increase for individuals receiving the maximum payment. The bill would also reinstate the cost-of-living adjustment beginning January 1, 2019, to prevent erosion of SSP benefits to inflation. AB 3200 would base the COLA on the changes in the California Necessities Index, adjusting annually as permitted.
