Organizational Overview

California Association of Food Banks (CAFB) is the state’s leading anti-hunger organization. Our mission is to end hunger in California. Together with our 41 Member food banks, we are working towards a well-nourished California where everyone has enough food to lead a healthy life. We do this by stocking food banks with farm-fresh produce and pantry essentials, helping eligible Californians enroll in food programs, and elevating the voice of hungry Californians in our statehouse, the country’s capital, and in the media. We work to ensure that food banks have the tools and resources they need to do what they do best: feed our communities.

This project collaborates with 5 Bay Area Food Banks servicing 9 Bay Area counties (Santa Clara, San Mateo, San Francisco, Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Contra Costa, Solano, and Alameda) and CAFB. The following food banks will sponsor this project – Alameda County Community Food Bank, Food Bank of Contra Costa Solano Counties, Redwood Empire Food Bank, San Francisco Marin Food Bank, and Second Harvest Silicon Valley.

Introduction

With the support of Feeding America and the Bay Area Food Banks, the California Association of Food Banks (CAFB) will explore a groundbreaking collaborative partnership that will harness the collective purchasing power of five Bay Area food banks to source fresh produce/foods directly from Historically Under-Resourced farmers, who are marginalized by historical and systemic racism at the national, state, and local levels. The Bay Area Food Banks Historically Under-Resourced Farm Grown Produce Partnership has the potential to help heal the broken food system, fuel the power of Historically Under-Resourced farmers, and nourish food bank clients with highly nutritious and culturally relevant foods.

Our premise is that by pooling financial resources and establishing purchasing commitments with small diverse suppliers, we can support a competitive market price for fresh produce/foods provided by Historically Under-Resourced farmers. The impact will be felt on both the supplier and client ends. First, more Black, Latinx, Southeast Asian, and other Historically Under-Resourced farmers will receive increased investment, improving their economic stability. In addition, families and individuals experiencing hunger across the Bay Area will have increased access to culturally relevant fresh produce/foods.

Scope of Work

Map and Inventory of Urban Farms in Bay Area

Create a census of all farms (urban & rural) in the nine-county area mentioned to include commodities grown, the volume of each commodity, current market, volume available for sale and seasonality, self-certify identification as Historically Under-Resourced farmer, annual sales, geographic region, food safety program, ability to scale and grow other commodities, delivery/transport capabilities and liability insurance and if currently working with food banks and/or other non-profit organizations.

Map & Inventory of Historically Under-Resourced Farms Across California

Identify California farms and develop a Matrix of the attributes listed above of all small and mid-size Historically Under-Resourced (Socially Disadvantaged) farms in California (all counties).

Identification of Barriers to Market Entry of BIPOC Farms

Interview a representative cross-section of the identified farms to understand any barriers that could prevent them from participating in a contractual relationship with CAFB. If pricing is above market, understand key drivers that could help reduce prices such that food banks could develop an ongoing relationship with the farm.

Provide data to formulate a cost analysis/quantitative study on all barriers for Historically Under-Resourced farms to sustain the work of supporting food banks with specific commodities and volume. Examples could be accounting software to create invoices, transportation, refrigeration, etc.

From learnings, develop a “Best Case Scenario” plan and implementation playbook that outlines how to execute a Historically Under-Resourced focused produce/fresh foods procurement policy with suggestions for policies and procedures for the group purchasing framework and identify logistical options for transporting produce from farmers to food banks.

Definitions

BIPOC – Black, Indigenous, People of Color

Counties – (9) Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Napa, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Solano, and Sonoma

Small Farm – GCFI (gross cash farm income) less than $350,000

Midsized Farm – GCFI between $350,001 and $999,999

Historically Under-Resourced – A farmer or rancher who is a member of a Socially Disadvantaged Group as defined by the USDA. A Socially Disadvantaged Group is a group whose members have been subject to discrimination on the basis of race, color, national origin, age, disability, and, where applicable, sex, marital status, familial status, parental status, religion, sexual orientation, genetic information, political beliefs, reprisal, or because all or a part of an individual's income is derived from any public assistance program.

Background

This project aims to develop a replicable and scalable strategic procurement policy for Bay Area food banks that operationalizes equity, reflects food bank clients' ethnic/racial diversity, and builds a more resilient and just regional food system. The project is designed to embed equity into food bank purchasing practices by leveraging collective influence with decision-makers and financial resources to reflect our values in the fight against root causes of hunger. The partnership will accomplish this by building a supply base that reflects the people who use food banks and prioritizes partnerships with small, diverse local suppliers. The framework created through this project will be shared with the intention of developing a regional food purchasing policy that supports small diverse farmers. Also, besides the assurance of a solid market, food banks can assist farmers with logistics strategies, introduction in supply chain synergies, relationship building, and other possible markets.

This project will empower small diverse farmers and food suppliers, focusing on Black, Latinx, Southeast Asian, and other socially disadvantaged farmers in low-income areas (e.g., California's Central Valley) and/or urban farms in the Greater Bay Area. Our vision is that through institutional partnerships, farmers will have stable customers committed to purchasing predetermined amounts of crops. In addition, Bay Area Food Banks and other potential customers that would adopt this model are in a position to pre-pay for products or pay very quickly at a market-competitive price after the product is received. This will overcome the cash-flow challenges that the target population is experiencing.

The five Bay Area Food Banks (BAFB) that form this collaboration represent a distribution of over 160 million pounds of fresh produce to their community. The Boundless Collaboration planning grant will study if it's possible to preserve a fair market price for Historically Under-Resourced farm grown produce by establishing ongoing relationships with diverse suppliers and harnessing the food banks' collective purchasing power to guarantee those purchases.

CAFB and BAFB are also included in the upcoming USDA (United States Department of Agriculture) LFPA (Local Food Purchasing Agreement) program. CDSS (California Department of Social Services) is the lead agency for the state, and we are currently awaiting contracts. CAFB has teamed up with CAFF (Community Alliance of Family Farms) and Fresh Approach to coordinate this program in the Bay Area and the majority of the state.
